

PIONEER FOR CHANGE PROGRAMME

Combining the Luxurious Elephant Experience with 'Volun'tourism' at the HESC in an exclusive 4-for-3 package

A strong interest by Camp Jabulani's clientele into the practices conducted at the Hoedspruit Endangered Species Centre (HESC) has led to the conceptualisation of a more intensive "hands-on" volun'tourism' itinerary. This will enable visitors to become actively involved in a working day at the progressive wildlife conservation facility which is custodian to a number of orphaned, injured and vulnerable animal species. A visit to the HESC is always offered to Camp Jabulani's guests, but many have expressed the desire for a more interactive and participative experience as opposed to the guided tour where animals are simply observed.

Says Adine Roode, Camp Jabulani's Owner, "It is truly heartening to see such extraordinary and genuine interest by our clientele in becoming actively involved in conservation. Moving way beyond the tendency to simply donate cash towards worthy causes is a desire to be part of the change for good. We have always held the belief that one person can make a staggering difference. To see so many now interested is fantastic! It is for this reason that we have decided to bridge the gap, albeit on a very small scale, between the good intentions and the actions required to mobilise them."

The Pioneer for Change Programme includes 3 nights at Camp Jabulani and receive the 4th night complimentary, per the traditional daily menu of activities including meeting the rescued herd of African elephants, game drives, bush walks, watching the elephants swim at the waterhole at mid-day and a guided VIP behind the scenes tour of the HESC. Spa indulgence, hot air ballooning and helicopter flights are also available, but at an additional cost. Day 3 is however a completely new educational and interactive concept.

Day 4

- Guests enjoy an early breakfast to departure at 06h30
- Arrival at the HESC is at 7am
- After an introduction to the Centre General Manager, and a brief orientation of the facilities and the activities planned for the day ahead, it is time to head over to the butchery
- Participants will get "hands-on" in the butchery as they assist to prepare the food for the cheetahs, wild dogs and vultures: 08h00 - 09h00
- The curator will then guide participants through the process of actively feeding the cheetahs, wild dogs and vultures
- It is then time to assist in the preparation of food for the smaller cat species, and any cubs that may be resident at the Centre at the time
- The next hour or so are spent feeding these smaller animals
- The process concludes with the clearing of the animals' feeding areas
- Volunteers will also have the opportunity to visit the Animal Hospital, and to meet with HESC's resident vet (subject to his being on site at the time). He will discuss with them any particular cases of interest, and the general challenges faced by the HESC when it comes to rehabilitating orphaned and injured animals that arrive at the Centre
- To concluded the experience, participants will be able to ask questions of the Management Team before departing for Camp Jabulani once again

Once the experience is complete, a "PIONEER FOR CHANGE" certificate will be issued to each participant to endorse their efforts as volunteers for the day.

In recognition of the work done by volunteers towards the HESC and animal conservation at large, Camp Jabulani will offer the fourth night on a complimentary bases to successful "Pioneers".

Please contact Camp Jabulani for further information on the Pioneer for Change programme, or should prospective participants have particular interests in the HESC which are not included in the sample itinerary above.
